

NONPROFITS

Corporate Citizenship

Here is a collection of some of the things Hawaii companies have recently done for local nonprofit organizations. They include volunteer efforts and monetary donations.

KONA BREWING CO.

The company donated 25,000 to two Jack Johnson benefit concerts at the Waikiki Shell on Aug. 4-5, which will support environmental education in Hawaii.

FIRST HAWAIIAN BANK FOUNDATION

The foundation awarded a $100,000 grant to Catholic Charities Hawaii in support of its Lailima House Campaign.

OFFICE OF HAWAIIAN AFFAIRS

The agency gave the Hawaii Forest Institute $172,262 over two years to tend, honor and grow the native dryland loma forest of Kaupulehu through the nonprofit's "Aloha Aina. Aloha Kaupulehu. Aloha Wao Lama." program to foster restorative kinship relationships between community and aina.

SAFeway

The grocery chain and the Hawaii Foodbank collected more than 18 bags of nonperishable food items during Safeway's Bag Summer Hunger Campaign, which resulted in about 150,000 pounds of food donations for the foodbank.

TIMES SUPERMARKETS

The supermarket chain donated more than $155,000 to the Hawaii Foodbank in 2017.

KAISER PERMANENTE HAWAII

The health organization awarded grants to two Maui County organizations: $27,500 to the Hawaii Cord Blood Bank received to expand Maui's cord blood banking program and allow for the collection, shipping and public banking of cord blood from newborns born at Maui Memorial Medical Center; and $20,000 to the Maui Economic Development Board to provide programming that will serve 45,000 students and teachers throughout the state.

AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK

The bank gave a $20,000 grant to the Hawaii HomeOwnership Center to provide classes,

COURTESY YMCA OF HONOLULU

▲ Volunteers from Pasha Hawaii, Hawaii Stevedores Inc. and Windward YMCA listed to "Uncle Kihei" tell stories about the Kawainui Marsh and the Ulupo Heiau and loi individualized coaching, and post-purchase services to homebuyers throughout the state.

◀ Michael Broderick, president and CEO of the YMCA of Honolulu, left, and Reggie Maldonado, general manager of Pasha Hawaii

The bank donated $417,624 to 16 local nonprofit organizations from April to June. The funds included gifts made by employees through the bank's 2017 Kahiau Giving Campaign, in which 88 percent of the bank's more than 1,100 teammates raised a total of $164,624; boosted by $100,000 in matching funds from ASB. The donations included multi-year grants, including $30,000 to support Catholic Charities Hawaii's Lailima House; $30,000 to Assets School to support the construction of the K-4 Village; $20,000 to the University of Hawaii at Manoa Department of Urban and Regional Planning to support the Hawaii Community Reinvestment Corporation Distinguished Professorship in Affordable Housing in the College of Social Sciences, held jointly in DURP and the University of Hawaii Economic Research Organization. Other recipients include: American Red Cross, Child & Family Service, Hale Makua Health Services, Junior

NONPROFITS

COURTESY HAWAII FOREST INSTITUTE

▲ Volunteers with the Hawaii Forest Institute work to restore the native dryland forest at Kaupulehu

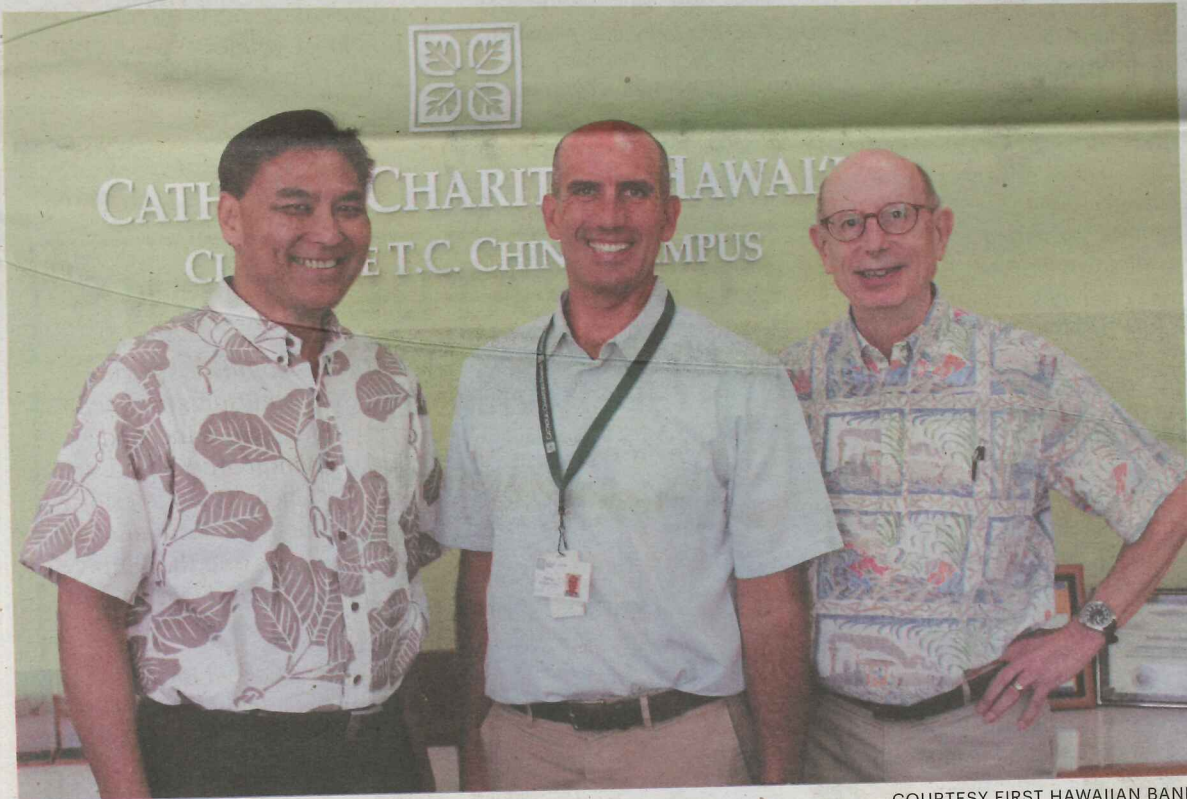

COURTESY AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK

▲ From left, Michelle Bartell, Bryan Luke, Makena Coffman, Carl Bonham, Donna Vuchinich, Rich Wacker and Ross Sutherland at the University of Hawaii

COURTESY AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK

▲ From left, Mark Kimoto of American Savings Bank, Reina Miyamoto and Dennis Oshiro of the Hawaii Home Ownership Center

COURTESY FIRST HAWAIIAN BANK

▲ From left, Vernon Wong of First Hawaiian Bank, Terry Walsh of Catholic Charities Hawaii, and Jerry Rauckhorst, Laulima House campaign chair

COURTESY AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK

▲ From left, Terry Walsh, Ann Teranishi, Connie Lau, Mary Saunders and Rich Wacker

Achievement of Hawaii, Kapiolani Health Foundation, Kupu, Maui Economic Development Board, Oahu Economic Development Board, Pacific and Asian Affairs Council, Partners in Development Foundation, Polynesian Voyaging Society, Positive Coaching Alliance, University of Hawaii Foundation and United Way, including Aloha United Way,

Friendly Isle United Fund, Hawaii Island United Way, Kauai United Way and Maui United Way

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE HAWAII

The chamber, as trustee of the Public Health Fund, provided grants totaling $59,000 to four Oahu-based community health programs in 2017: $5,000 to

Aloha Harvest; $9,000 to Hawaii Health Information Corp.; $20,000 to Healthy Mothers Healthy Babies Coalition of Hawaii; and $25,000 to Waikiki Health Center

PASHA HAWAII, HAWAII STEVEDORES

More than two dozen employees from Pasha Hawaii and Hawaii

Stevedores Inc., along with family members, joined volunteers at the Windward YMCA to restore the historic Ulupo Heiau State Historic Site and the loi behind the Windward Y in Kailua. Pasha Hawaii also provided an undisclosed amount of funding for the project.